

Rinkya Diet Sheds Spare Tire

Tempe, AZ and Tokyo, Japan- January 28, 2009. Despite the testimonials, "I lost 100 pounds eating mangos and ice cream," most offers to lose that spare tire end up expensive, time consuming and ultimately futile. Rinkya, however, has developed a way you can lose that spare tire, guaranteed, and save yourself a pot full in the process.

"Rinkya's new spare tire service is just what the doctor ordered for those high shipping costs on rims," says Rinkya's shipping manager Scott Russell. "We see a lot of spare tires, and frankly, they aren't very attractive. We do handle the best rims available, we think worldwide, from the Japanese Internet. Rims that are an absolute must for the automotive sport of drifting, and frankly a lot that just look super-cool. But the spare tires that come attached to them are anything but. They are sort of ugly, fat, overweight placeholders and I can't imagine anyone seriously want to put them on a car.

"The problem comes with shipping. The weight they add is expensive, something on the order of fifty to one hundred U.S. dollars. They even force some rims with tires attached over the 20 kg limit for shipping to Australia and New Zealand. And have you ever tried to get rid of a tire in these eco-conscious times? You'd think they were made primarily of arsenic.

"Well we put our heads together here in the Rinkya warehouse," continues Scott. "We got the proper equipment, made a deal to dispose of those old tires without causing a worldwide catastrophe, so now we can get rid of your spare tire for fifteen U. S. dollars. No matter where in the world you want your rims, you come out major dollars ahead on the deal, with no hassles removing or disposing of that old, useless spare tire. "

"We handle rims, suspensions, struts, coil-overs, mufflers, exhausts, rear spoilers and wings, intercoolers, radiators and other miscellaneous car parts," says Rinkya CEO Heather Russell. "It's taken us a lot of time, work and thought to build an efficient system to ship them. But I really think it's something we do better than anyone else. Removing old tires and disposing of them in an environmentally safe manner is just the newest wrinkle in a long line of shipping innovations to serve buyers worldwide. We know what you want, and we're working constantly to find ways to get it to you in the most efficient and economical fashion possible.

"And hey, who else guarantees you'll lose that spare tire, no ifs, ands or buts. Try to get that out of a mango diet."
