

HAPPY YEAR OF THE DOG! THINK RINKYA FOR JAPAN SHOPPING!

In Japan the dog symbolizes prosperity and protection. A small bronze statue to honor the legendary Akita dog, Hachiko, was erected at Tokyo's Shibuya Train Station in 1934. The story of Hachiko's loyalty and faithfulness has warmed the hearts of millions of Japanese travelers for over seventy years. Hachiko would go each day with his master to the Shibuya Train Station when he left for work. Upon his return, Hachiko would be waiting and wagging in anticipation. One day, however, his master did not return. He had taken ill and died at work. Hachiko, however, kept up his daily watch- waiting for his master. The faithful dog waited for over ten years until his own death at the Shibuya Station.
